I could've actually optimized my Graph.java to begin with rather than starting by trying to forcefully get under the time frame for large files. I didn't meet with the psoft staff so they wouldn't have been able to do anything different. I wish I had known we were able to comment out our checkRep() because that was so expensive and was probably the biggest reason why I couldn't get under 10 seconds.